Ever After School · North American Chapter

Dear Mr. Chase Turnleaf,

This letter, as you well know, is unnecessary. You have memorized all the Tales occurring within the last dozen generations of your family. You memorized them within a week of moving here with your father. Unlike many young Characters who arrive at Ever After School without this knowledge, you do not require this information from me, and writing this is a waste of my time and yours.

However, you insist, and Rumpelstiltskin has informed me that you have begun trying to break into the library in order to doublecheck your father's memory and locate your ancestors' Tales. That behavior must cease.

Thus, looking through our records, we can confirm the following Tales in the last five generations of your family:

- ❖ Jack and the Beanstalk, Jack the Giant Killer (your father)
- ❖ The Emperor's New Clothes (your paternal grandfather)
- ❖ Dapplegrim (youngest brother of your paternal grandfather)
- ❖ The Glass Coffin (younger brother of your paternal grandmother)
- ❖ The Boy Who Went Forth to Learn What Fear Was (father of your paternal grandfather)
- ❖ Aladdin (great-uncle of your paternal grandfather)

We have discussed, at great length, the reasons why the Tales on your father's side may have no bearing on your own destiny as a Character. I will not waste further time by listing them again here.

The Director

P.S. If this does not satisfy your curiosity, let it be known that since your father is out of town, attending to his duties as Champion of the Canon, the duty of disciplining you falls to me. For three years, I have refrained from sending a child to the dungeons, but you are tempting me to reinstate that punishment.
